Those who have seen Ritchie in his recent training, and who have noted the quiet air of confidence radiating from the former holder of the title, believe he intends to adopt radically different measures this time against Welsh. It is rumored that Wille is going to take the aggressive from the beginning and devote all his attention to connecting one solid punch with connecting one solid punch with It is a certainty that Ritchie will not

The Californian does not appear quite so fast in his gymnasium work as he did a year ago. His footwork, too, appears to have suffered a bit in comparison with what he showed earlier in his career. His long lay-off has undoubtedly had its effect on the former champion's speed, but on the other hand, he has filled out until he ooks more like a welterweight than a lightweight.

His training methods would indi-cate that Ritchie is going to rely on the heft of his punch this time, rather than on mere speed, to defeat his con-queror. Both Dr. Jeffreys, the Pacific Coast boy's trainer, and Ritchie him-self are confident sogner or later Welsh's jaw will come in contact with Willie's glove, and that then the title will come back to America.

31% OPTIMISM IN CAMP OF YALE OARSMEN Crew Work Has Become Active After the Return of Guy Nickalls,

With Guy Nickalls back from England, crew work at Yale has become active, in preparation for another victory over the Crimson at New London next June. Despite repeated assurances to the contrary there has been a feeling that something might been a feeling that something might intervene so that Nickalls would be obliged to stay in England, and his actual presence here in New Haven has given the Blue confidence that there will be another powerful varsity eight. Last season the new Yale rowing policy was something of an experiment and was something of an experiment, and hopes and doubts struggled against cach other almost up to the day of the big race. There is a different con-dition now. Nickalls has proved his theory by an indelible victory, and his judgment from now on will re-main unquestioned in all that pertains to the rowing policy at New Haven. And as a matter of fact that policy And as a matter of fact that policy has been quite cleverly outlined.

It is now known that the Yale varility sity will use an English made shell, less, equipped with thole pins, but in arrangement of seats the American custom will prevail, that of placing the men directly over the keel, instead of zigzag as in the usual type of English boat. The performance of English boat. The performance of the Yale crew last year when it used the thole pin rig and the corroborative evidence which was gathered from the performance of Pennsylvania on the Hudson has been taken as a justification of what by many was considered as an absolute method. The fact that Captain Denegre and Coach Nickalls are in accord on all the main points of the rowing policy gives main points of the rowing policy gives confidence that there will be no hitch in carrying active training along to a successful issue,
